

Dear Saadia,

Thank you for your interest in partnering with me to be an Executive Coach for the next season ahead. Simply put, the Hamilton Executive Coaching vision is to partner with executives to bring their critical thinking skills, performance, and leadership presence to the elite level. This is realized through skills I have gleaned from formal executive and emotional intelligence coaching training combined with over 20 years of leadership experiences in multiple industries. From collegiate ballparks as a head coach and athletics director, to the front lines of the energy industry, to the C-Suites and Boardrooms of the same, I've experienced unique and relate-able moments in my own executive journey.

To maintain momentum, our sessions will be no further out than bi-weekly. This allows enough time to pass by where various action steps may be realized, but close enough where we leverage the energy and accountability of our sessions. We will mutually decide the best 'day and time' while I understand the demands of an executive creates the need for flexibility.

Please review the Coaching options included with this letter. I have also included a sample EQi 2.0 Leadership report that would drive our sessions and client growth if I am selected as your next executive coach.

If the information provided here is of interest, I suggest an opportunity to meet Ms. Nook to determine if we both feel the relationship and road map is one we believe would bear great results.

Thanks again for your consideration and I look forward to hearing from you on next steps.

Be Blessed,

Jared Hamilton, BCC
